

- 20 When 7.0 g of X is added to a mixture of reactants, the rate of formation of the products increases. At the end of the reaction, 7.0 g of X is still present in the mixture.

Which energy change represents the activation energy of the reaction when X is added?

- 21 A biological reaction is carried out at a constant temperature of 20 °C